A New Tool for Taking a Time Out

Fraser, MI, Nov. 30, 2012 - Healthmark Industries announces a new product to help remind healthcare care professionals to take a surgical pause before using surgical instruments in the OR.

A “surgical pause” is the universal protocol for preventing wrong site, wrong procedure, and wrong person surgery. Healthmark’s new stainless steel “Time Out” sign serves as a perfect reminder. The 1" x 5" dimensions make this sign visible to read, yet still compact and light. The sign can be sterilized individually or be included inside with a set of instruments. The 304 grade stainless is materially compatible with steam, EO & gas-plasma sterilization.
